This project is a temperature monitoring system using an Arduino, an LCD, and a temperature sensor (such as an LM35). The sensor reads the ambient temperature as an analog voltage, which is then converted into Celsius and Fahrenheit. The values are displayed on a 16x2 LCD screen and updated every second.

This system can be useful for real-time temperature monitoring in various applications.